Brussels, October 11, 2016

After the second debate between Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump, speculations in the betting world are becoming rife.

In anticipation of the last political confrontation that will put former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton against populist billionaire Donald Trump, bets on the election of one or the other candidate are rapidly multiplying.

On bookmaker goldenpalace.be's website, bets are possible not only on the party who will get the most votes in each state, but also on the election of the future president of the United States of America. At this instant, the democrats are favourite, with odds of 1.20 for Hillary Clinton versus 4.50 for Donald Trump.

Many among those interested in this political event are so primarily because of how it is characterised by personal and outlandish attacks professed by and against each candidate.

The odds are very likely to swing enormously until October 19, when the last meeting between the two candidates in the race for the White House takes place. However: the dice will not be cast before November 8, the final election date.
